Decisive Victory Scored Over Conservative Party

Motion of Want of Confidence in Existing Government Passed — Proposed by the Rt. Hon. Max Ford, Leader of the Opposition — Present Policy of Conservatives scathingly Attacked by Liberal Chieftain — Premier Becket Discusses Party Policy And Asks Approval — Labor Party and Independent Farmers Take Active Part.

A stormy scene took place in the House of Commons last night as the Opposition, under the leadership of the Rt.-Hon. Maxwell Ford, scored a decisive victory over the then existing Conservative Government in passing a vote of Lack of Confidence in their policies. Premier Beckett staunchly supported by his henchman, the Hon. J. A. Zaitlin, representing the Irish Minority of St. Lawrence Main, battled bravely in the face of a scathing denunciation from the opposite benches which were considerably strengthened by the Labour Party of Canada and the Independent Farmers.

Edmund Collard, the Speaker of the House, in his preliminary remarks announced that the opinions expressed by the Honorable Members were not necessarily those which they held personally, as some on both sides were arguing directly contrary to their real political feelings.

Speaker Acknowledges Gift

After a brief period of questions during which much stinging repartee was rampant the Speaker gratefully acknowledged the receipt of a pair of garters and the Government introduced a motion that he wear them in a conspicuous place. Discussion on the motion revealed the hope that this would give more snap to his remarks, but others claimed that the motion was too elastic. Motion was carried and the division was along strong partisan lines.

Prominent among the Government front benchers was the Hon. Marj. Gowans, Minister of National Defence and Agriculture, while the Hon H. Schaffhausen, Minister of Fish and Chipperies in the new Ford Administration and the Hon. Allison Walsh, Minister of Tirade and Converse, were prominent among the Opposition proponents.

U. C. Students Protest Ruling

Los Angeles, Cal. — Members of the Defence of Foreign Students, an organization at the University of California, have made a protest against the recent ruling of the United States Department of Labor, regarding foreign students in the United States.

The resolution declaring that foreign students were not competing with American labor was adopted at a meeting held at International House. It was declared that the ruling was particularly damaging to the University of California, which claims more foreign students than any other educational institution in the country.

Immigration officials here explained that the ruling gives them the authority to require a bond from a foreign student. A reasonable assurance that he will be able to pay his expenses. The ruling, officials declared, could be applied in doubtful cases and was not aimed so much at earnest students as at those who came with no real intention of studying.

Good hunting is reported from the Bates Camp, near Matagama, Ontario, on the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, seventy miles east of Sudbury. Moose and deer are very numerous close to the camp and in one morning a couple of U.S. hunters secured a fine bull moose and a deer. They killed to the limit of their licenses within a few days.

Oratory and Snow Pellets Feature At Hustings Yesterday

Government Forces Clash With Opposition In Verbal Tilt

Steaming into port in time to rally his Government forces at yesterday's hustings on the steps of the Arts Building the Right Hon. Wilson Beckett, visibly worn out by the vicissitudes of Parliamentary life, defended the Conservative administration against the verbal onslaughts of the Opposition, led by the Hon. Max Ford. Much to the consternation of megaphone-wielder Nat. Levitsky and the other orators, the hot air generated was not sufficiently potent to melt the numerous snow missiles.

Flaying the Government for its policy of giving work to the workless, Henry Schaffhausen, Minister of Fish and Chiperies, pointed out that the McGill students are the greatest body of unemployed in the country and their rights must be protected. In the event of his party coming into power, the Department of Fish and Chiperies is expected to fork over whenever the interests of the country are at steak.

In supporting the powers-that-be, the Hon. Abe Zaitlin, Minister of Labour, endeavoured to show that the previous speaker was merely a chip off the old fishead. Refusing to descend to personalities, Zaitlin labelled the Opposition as "mendacious columniators.

Midst cheers and jeers, the Right Hon. Wilson Beckett, the Prime Minister, admitted that his administration had been guilty of only one fault: the tariff on cheap cars had not been high enough to keep all the Fords out of the country. Apparently a government cannot afFord to commit even one misplay, was the belief of our heckler.

Making a special plea for the support of the female element, the Hon. Maxwell Ford, leader of the Opposition, made a proposal on the basis of his discovery that "'Ever since Mother Eve made a dress out of poison ivy, women have been itching for something new to wear."

Amateur Operators Foregather Friday

McGill Radio Association Sponsors Novel Meeting In Union

Under the auspices of the McGill Radio Association, the first radio "Hamfest" ever to be held on the Campus, will take place Friday night at 8.00 in the Union. A hamfest, for those who do not know, is a gathering where amateur operators, may get together and meet fellow "hams" which is the name that has been given to all those of that ilk.

Arrangements have been completed by the Executive to make the meeting a great success. Some of the latest types of broadcasting apparatus will be on hand, due to the courtesy of the Northern Electric Company. Contests will be held, and prizes presented to the winners.

The McGill Radio Station's official call is VE2CP, and has become well known around the Province. It has a power of 75 watts, and operates on a frequency of 41 metres, or about 7150 Kilocycles. The purpose of the station is to get students interested in radio broadcasting and receiving, and to give them a practical knowledge of radio communication. The set used is a tuned plate tuned circuit set.

Invitations to attend the meeting are extended to all persons interested in amateur radio in the vicinity of Montreal, irrespective of whethre they are McGill students or not. Refreshments will be served at the meeting, of which the price of admission will be fifty cents.

Letter Explaining Constitution And Plans of New Society Received

Due to a misleading statement which appeared recently in the Montreal Gazette which gave to many the impression that the newly formed Spanish Club was no longer a University Club the following letter has been received to correct this misapprehension:

"The club, according to the constitution that has just been drawn up, will consist of (a) all members, (professors and students) of the department of Spanish of McGill University, (b) other students of McGill University who have been approved by a duly-appointed Membership Committee, and (c) outside members who have likewise been approved by this Membership Committee.

Objects of Club

Its objects have been formulated under the following six headings:—

(1). To hold regular meetings at which members may listen to lectures delivered by competent persons on important phases of Spanish history and art, or in any other interesting topic connected with the history and development of Spain or with the history and development of Spanish America.

(2). To hold meetings at which members may interchange views on Spanish or Spanish-American topics, or on any questions that may arise in connection with their Spanish studies.

(3). To provide an opportunity of listening frequently to the Spanish language in conversation, or otherwise, and to hold additional meetings for this express purpose.

(4). To furnish members with reliable and up-to-date information through the purchase of reviews and otherwise, concerning the progress of Spanish studies throughout the world, and concerning current events in all Spanish-speaking countries.

(5). To engage in all other activities which in the opinion of the executive of the Club may conduce to the attainment of any, or all, of the above objects, or may increase the usefulness and prestige of the Club.

(6). Finally, to establish such regulations and fix such membership as the objects of the Club may, in the opinion of the Executive, require.

In accordance with this Constitution the following officers were appointed, all belonging to McGill:

Prof. R. M. Sugars, Hon. President.

Mr. Webber will speak on "The Organization and Operation of the Bell Telephone Company."

It is expected that the speech will embody various ramifications concerning the Telephone system, but the main emphasis will be placed on the commercial phase inasmuch as Mr. Webber is in direct control of the commercial department of the company. The luncheon is the third meeting of the Society. Tickets for the event may be obtained at the Union Tuck shop or from class officers.

Rutherford's Work Subject Of Speech

Dr. A. S. Eve, today addressed a meeting of the Chemical Industry Club in the Lecture Theatre of the Chemistry Building. His subject, which he illustrated with slides and experiments, was, "Radioactivity in connection with Sir Ernest Rutherford's work at McGill."

Dr. Eve, at the outset of his lecture, stated that he would endeavour to describe to the members of the Club, the nature of McGill thirty years ago, the men of that time, and the wonderful achievements they accomplished. He spoke of Sir. William Peterson, then Principal of the University; Sir. William McDonald, McGill's great benefactor; also of the many remarkable and distinguished members of the Staff of the Chemistry and Physics Departments.

Among these latter was Sir Ernest Rutherford, who was then a young Professor just out from England. He was tremendously interested in the question of radioactivity; while at Cambridge, where he held one of the 1851 Exhibition Scholarships, he became expert on the subject of the ionization of atoms.

He followed up the work Professor and Madame Curry had been doing in Paris on radium emanations, and made many important discoveries on the Alpha, Beta and Gamma rays. Dr. Eve illustrated his remarks with some of the original slides, Rutherford made of his experiments. In conclusion he performed several experiments to show how Lord Rutherford might have arrived at his conclusions by a different method.

English Weights And Measures Discussed

Mr. Hazen Addressed Meeting Of St. James Literary Society Last Night

STANDARDS VARIOUS

One System Eventually To Be Employed Throughout The World

At the regular weekly meeting of the St. James Literary Society last night, Mr. C. R. Hazen addressed the members on the subject, "The Story of English Weights and Measures." The speaker discussed the use of standard weights and measures from early times with particular attention to the adoption of different weights and measures as standards by different countries.

Mr. Hazen opened his remarks by showing that while the need of standard weights was felt in early times, they were not really essential to early traders and commercial men. For example, in England, every town had its own standard weights and measures. The distance between the towns discouraged intertown trading, thus doing away with the necessity of a national or universal standard. However, with the enormous development of modern industry, new standards of exactness were demanded. Governments of different countries then set up legislation concerning national standards, which then became law.

Oldest Standard

The oldest standard of weight was found in Samaria buried in the tomb of a High Priest. It consists of a polished stone with an inscription on it to the effect that it was the standard weight for the trading of wool. All the standard weights and measures in Greek and Roman times were kept by the Priesthood. The first record of any laws governing the standards of weights in England is in Magna Carter. These were not enforced. The inch was taken to be equal to three

Last Chance Today For Review Chorus

Skit Competition Will Close This Saturday

This afternoon is the last chance for chorines who have not already tried out, to join the chorus of the Red and White Revue. A rehearsal of the old chorus will also be held at the same time and place, the union ballroom at 5.15. It is reported that due to the swelling mass of recruits, a good chorus is expected.

Saturday will definitely be the closing time of the Skit Competition and therefore all efforts should be submitted immediately. Two first prizes of $10 each have been offered for the best skit and one for the best piece of music. In addition, two tickets will be presented to all those writers whose work is used in the Revue. The music competition closed last Saturday and consequently material received after this date although it may be used will not be eligible for the cash prize.

The committee urges all the chorus to be on time, saying that the time is short and the work is long.

Preparations For Arts Undergrads Dance Progress

Tickets Now on Sale at Price Of One Dollar Per Couple

LATEST developments in the arrangements for the Arts Hockey Informal, December 23, are in the direction of obtaining some form of professional entertainment to add to the festivities. An effort is being made by the executive in charge to secure the best possible, and the president wishes to assure all interested that no effort will be spared in this connection.

Dancing will start as soon after the Harvard Hockey game as is convenient and the Ballroom will be arranged a la Cabaret style with tables all around.

Stags Excluded

It is the rule of the evening that no stags be allowed whatever and stringent measures will be taken to enforce this. The executive feels that it is of interest to the students to announce at this point a statement made last night by the Sports Editor to the effect that the Harvard Hockey Game is a Home game and so coupons will be of value.

Ticket sale is now in full swing and they may be obtained at the price of one dollar per couple from any class officer. The number will be limited to 150 and so all are urged to purchase them as soon as possible to avoid disappointment. Although this is a function sponsored by the Arts Undergraduate Society the dance

Band To Appear At McGill-Harvard Tilt

Special Practice Called For Saturday Afternoon

After a long layoff the band will resume its task of livening up athletic encounters, when it makes its appearance at the McGill-Harvard game on December 23rd. In preparation for this performance, there will be a special practice in the Union Ballroom on Saturday afternoon at 2.00 o'clock. At this practice, the band will concentrate on popular airs, sparing no effort for this important international contest.

So far the band has been unable to appear at any hockey games but after the holidays, it is expected that it will make quite frequent appearances. This year the band enjoyed a most successful season, climaxing with the Varsity game, when a record-breaking turnout of 48 did much to add to the color and spirit of the occasion.

Each year the band presents three types of music, adapted to the various occasions at which it appears. At the football games it presented military music predominantly, it played concert music at the Musical Association concert, and will play popular airs and catchy tunes exclusively at the hockey games.

R. Tait And B. Goulding To Speak At Commons Club

The meeting will be held at the home of Professor Forsey, who has extended his hospitality to the club.

The meeting is for members of the club only, and many have already signified their intention of attending.

First Performance Of Operetta Given By McGill Artists

Mary Friedman, Bob Freeman And J. Waud Portray Parts Well

MUSIC EXCELLENT

Record Sized Chorus Of One Hundred Give Fine Performance

Long heralded, the "Yeomen of the Guard" have at last greeted their McGill audience in a setting that is colorful, in costumes that are gay, and amidst music that will forever ring where a taste for the best in light opera exists. Gilbert's favourite, and Sullivan's masterpiece in this particular field, the action maintains the interest unswervingly, and if the plot does not ramble tortuously, it leaves the minds of its audience free to appreciate its delicacies, and permits its actors character studies that will inevitably stamp themselves upon the minds of those who witness it.

Out of all that mass of performers, a few stand out with particular distinction. These, by their splendid efforts in their solo songs and lines, continued the excellent tone of the mightiest chorus that has graced Moyse Hall stage within our memory. Mary Friedman must inevitably lead this list, by reason of her crystal-clear lyric soprano, and the perfect manner in which she controls its pitch and its emotional intent. Her personal carriage lags very little from this achievement in voice, especially in her gypsy costume, but it must be said in fairness that her wedding gown paid her very little compliment.

Part Well Portrayed

Jack Point, as portrayed by Bob Freeman, was very much the clown of a "Laugh Clown Laugh" episode. His was almost the only acting worthwhile mentioning and was the highlight of many of the scenes in which he took part. It is unfortunate that the person in charge of his make-up showed so great a lack of ideas, for contrasted with his costume, a tailor's masterpiece, his face showed through his hood as . . . Bob Freeman, and not the jester.

Jack Waud might have made a special study of jailors, so well did he portray the part; to this he added so drole an air when he quoted his lines, that his audience could not help but understand the underlying humour of his seriousness. Phoebe Meryll, (Dorothy Mackay) while not possessing a voice of particular quality, nevertheless took her part so pleasantly as to warrant her inclusion in this list. Sir Richard Cholmondely (Harrison Jones) bade fair at first to equal these others, but seemed to lose control of his voice in his last appearance. Dame Carruthers (Adele Lortie) had the difficult part of being an undesirable character, which was helped by her somewhat harsh voice and stiff bearing.

Before we voice any objections, comment must be made upon the excellent accompaniment given by the orchestra. It seemed to discover by instinct, or perhaps Mr. Cooper's instinct, when to be but a whisper, or when to expand and hide some of the weaknesses in the singers. The tone of some of the instruments was a pleasant surprise after this orchestra's performance at last week's student concert, and but for the weak brasses would have been hard to criticize.

Now for objections. In voice, Colonel Fairfax, (Bob Calder) was a great disappointment, and spoilt many of his solos. Sergeant Meryll (J. S. Allen) acted out of another age, using the tactics that even in musical comedy have long passed out of existence. His son, Leonard (R. Carmichael) proved an admirable cowboy.

The lights and settings were adequate, in conformity with the costumes, but the general run of the make-up was not of great value. The features should have been stressed to a far greater extent. The encores were given were out of place,

Theologs Hold Tea

Will Raise Relief Money For Unemployed

In order to raise money for their unemployment project, the Theological Undergraduates' Society are holding an informal tea in the students' common room in Divinity Hall this Friday at 4.30. This first tea is more in the nature of an experiment, and if successful more will be held. The price is 25 cents single, 40 cents a couple. The Theological Undergraduates have mapped out a very definite plan of relief which is to be announced later. This tea is but part of a scheme for raising money in order that their project might be put into operation.

An Explanation

WITH the publication of this issue of the McGill Daily a new Managing Board takes office for the rest of this term. This change was effected due to the resignation of the former Managing Board after the termination of their suspension by the Students' Executive Council. No appointment has been made for the position of Sports Editor but this position will be filled today. Due to these appointments vacancies have been created on the Associate Board and promotions will be made from the staff to fill these. The new Managing Board asks for the co-operation of the Associates, reporters and student body to maintain the standard that the Daily has set as the "oldest" and best College newspaper in Canada."

Objectivity

ONE of the most important things that we should strive for in thought is an objective viewpoint—the elimination of romantic egocentrism. The secret of clear thinking is to get out of one's own skin, to view man in his proper place in the universe and man as a whole rather than as an individual. This idea of the common good rather than the individual good is not new, as a matter of fact, of late, it has been heard again and again, but this doesn't take away from its essential truth. To be able to dispassionately, disinterestedly and objectively view all the facts of history, of economics and of science should be the goal of all people who profess to think, among whom some should be university students.

After having reached objectively the conception of man's place in the universe, when we realize that man is not the measure of all things, and eliminated our vain anthropomorphisms, then we should turn our objective eye upon man himself. We see that he is influenced by heredity and environment, probably in equal degree, though the biologists stress the former and behaviorists the latter. The only way to control these factors is by education. By education, we do not mean the school life, but the whole process of upbringing and instruction from a child's earliest days. Education in the wide sense of the word has not as yet got the necessary facts at its disposal, nor the agreement as to the goal among educationalists to really be as efficacious as possible. However with advance in educational methods and theories, the time is not far distant when we can hope for greater progress and a new standard for all humanity.

Displacing Human Labor

TRYING to figure out some way of solving the unemployment problem has provided a sharp headache for more than one economist within the last few years. Usually, with furrowed brow, the specialist lets it go by referring to what looks like a perfectly undeniable fact, that if we could only get general business activity back to the level of 1928 the unemployment problem would take care of itself.

An internationally known magazine, after a survey of the whole field, declares that a critical unemployment problem is going to be with us after good times have returned. The arch-villain, it finds, is that peculiar spectre, technological unemployment, the kind of employment that comes not because times are bad, but because machinery does the work that men formerly did. The magazine foresees that the mechanization of industry will continue with even more striking displacement of human labor in the future. If seventy workers today do the work that one hundred did in 1910, in 1945 the same work will be done by forty workers according to its conclusions.

Here is a problem that exists quite independently of the depression,—a problem that will grow progressively more acute in years to come and will be vexatious long after this depression has passed into history. It may be, indeed, the fundamental problem of our civilization, more vital even than the tripartite conflict between democracy, communism and fascism. We are reaching the end of a long epoch and it is time we devoted our best thought and energy to the question of how we are going to meet it.

Yoemen of The Guard

THE McGILL Operatic and Choral Society are to be congratulated upon its latest achievements. It has succeeded in presenting one of the most difficult of the Gilbert and Sullivan repertoire, it has succeeded in a production after a full year's rest, a dangerous practice at best, and it has succeeded in providing excuse for good entertainment. Instead of the time elapsed since the last opera, "Pirates of Penzance," dampening their spirits, it seems to have stored up fresh energies which are now giving the opportunity of building up the success of the present venture.

Like all these student undertakings, this depends for its success or failure upon the support that the students will give it. The criticism that has reached our ears about the "Yoemen" has varied somewhat but all agree in praising the costuming, the setting, and the music. In musical comedy, this is almost all that matters, and since experience has shown us that even professional companies offer little more, one is inclined to feel that the Choral Society will benefit not only its artistic inclinations, but also in its financial position and in its importance as a Campus Club.

NOTES AND NOTES

An American Composer

THE playing of MacDowell's "Piano Concerto" by Ernest Hutchison over the radio on Sunday night, inaugurated a week of music in which the works of this most outstanding American composer will be stressed, and which will culminate on Sunday December 18, in the 71st anniversary of his birth. From the moment of his arrival in Boston in 1888, after several year's study in Europe, this composer created an impression upon his people, and gave a healthy impulse to American composers.

Edward Alexander MacDowell, born in New York of Scottish ancestry, gave evidence of his musical prowess at an early age, and when he was 15, was sent to the Paris Conservatoire. After a period here, he went to Wiesbaden where he studied composition under Joachim Raff, one of the most noted romanticists of his time, who proved to be a great influence upon the writings of the American. While in Europe, MacDowell attracted the attention of Liszt, who, in his enthusiasm allowed him to play his first piano suite.

Upon his return to America, he spent his time writing, teaching, and giving occasional concerts. After a few years, he received a professorship at Columbia University, which lasted until four years before his death in 1908. His distinct and impressive individuality, and his own theories as to texture of sounds and chord formations are to be noted in his achievement of a novelty that was never cheaply sensational. Characteristic of this feeling was his idea that "if you would have a chord bite, put a trace of acid in its sweetness."

In the development of any national music, there is a period in its history when a certain amount of discipleship is inevitable. MacDowell's works show this spirit fully, for they are an assimilation of European motives, figures and ideas. In fact, when referring to some of his early works, especially those preceding the publication of his Heroic Sonata, he has been called the "secretary of the grandiose German romantics." His typical music is strongly rhythmical, and demands movement and swing almost as much as jazz does.

The impressionism of MacDowell's "Woodland Sketches" and "Sea Pieces" came to him rather late in life, and tended to replace the romanticism of his songs. Of the latter, he wrote many, concerned chiefly with love, sylvan subjects, flowers, and such like. He set some of Burn's songs, notably "Ye Banks and Braes" "Menie" and "My Jean," and in all this branch of music made use of Scottish rhythmic devices, and cadences. In Accompaniment, he is never strictly contramelodic. His works for the piano achieved immediate success, and were played both on this continent and in Europe. They are characterized by refined and highly emotionalized harmonization, poetic feeling, and a spirit of breezy freshness. It is strange to note that he has little sympathy with Negro music, but was rather that son of America who thought mainly of the Mayflower and its lovely load.

F. J. Haydn

THE R.V.C. MUSIC CLUB deserves congratulations, for just when I had decided to write an article about Montreal's lack of appreciation in not celebrating the two-hundredth anniversary of Haydn's birth, by even one concert, they came to the fore with their's. I was not present at this occasion, being a male, and self-conscious in the presence of so large a group of ..... and so cannot pass judgment as to quality. I do feel, however, that their action should have been duplicated, and reduplicated, by other groups, not by small circles, but by the larger bodies which appear before the public. It is even possible that some other localised club did give such a performance, but these have not achieved publicity to any extent.

When one realizes that Haydn wrote more than one thousand works, and most of these in the larger forms, it is obvious that choice of program for an occasion such as a commemorative concert would not be confined either to types or to tastes. If one were bold, and dared risk being called rude, one would suggest that the Montreal Orchestra might have felt it their duty to pay tribute to "Papa" Haydn, but the press must grovel before such a musical deity, must praise with lavish abandon, must shut its eyes and ears to faults that may be painfully obvious, and must offer up unending thanks for small mercies. For the "London" Symphony let us all kotow.

Franz Joseph Haydn was born on March 31, 1732 in Rohrau, Austria, and at the age of five his musical talent attracted the attention of a relative who gave him his first instruction. At eight he went to Vienna as a chorister. In 1760, he entered the service of Prince Esterhazy at Eisenstadt as Kapellmeister, where he remained for thirty years. During this period, his friendship for and teaching of Mozart earned him from the latter the endearing title of "Papa" Haydn. In 1790, at the offer of the famous violinist Salomon, he visited England, where he wrote twelve of his most famous symphonies, including the "London," "Surprise," and "Clock" symphonies. While here, he received the honorary degree of Doctor of Music from Oxford University.

Haydn's contemporaries classify him as gentle, simple, frank, with a cheerful disposition and a sense of humour. His originality and masterly technique are proved by his reputation as a prolific writer, which in the case of symphonies alone amount to about 150. The beauty and spirit of his music are never denied, but equal to this is the fact that his was the guiding hand that carried the evolution and expansion of the early forms of music to the higher planes of the Sonata-Allegro. Haydn laid the foundation for its design, and then gave final evidence of his artistry by his choice and treatment of the instruments for the orchestra.

Dear Jacques J. Bernard

ALLOW me to thank you for your hint that if I wish to merit the honour of being unprejudiced I must admit at the outset that the creative artists belonging to the country of my nativity or to the country of my residence are inevitably second-rate.

Wednesday 9 O'clocks for January

OWING to the fact that Sarah Fisher has decided not to come to Canada this season she has been obliged to cancel her engagement with the '9 o'clocks for January. The management has been fortunate in securing for this date, Yvonne Hubert pianist, and her brother Marcel Hubert cellist, both of whom won first prize at the Paris Conservatoire:, Yvonne Hubert is a pupil of Cortot and head of the Cortot school in Montreal. Marcel Hubert is one of most brilliant of the younger cellist and has already had tremendous successes in Europe and in the States. He is in Canada for a short time and will return to Paris after his engagement with the '9 O'Clocks. It has been decided to hold the last two concerts of the series—January 4th, and February 1st.—at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel.

WITH Arturo Toscanini's departure to Europe, Issay Dobrowén succeeds him as guest conductor of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra for a four-week regime, which started with his conducting of a program featuring Russian composers during the orchestra's broadcast from 3:00 to 5:00 p.m., EST, over WABC and a coast-to-coast Columbia network, Sunday, December 4.

A native of Nijni-Novrogod, Russia, Dobrowen graduated from the Moscow Conservatory at 16 with the gold medal for composition and for piano. In 1917 he was engaged as professor at the Conservatory and at the same time as conductor of the Moscow Opera, where he remained until 1922. Having gained a continental reputation, he was called to Dresden, Berlin, Sofia and Oslo for a season in each city. His first American appearance was with the San Francisco Symphony in 1930, the same organization which he conducted last season. This program marks his debut both with Philharmonic and over the Columbia network.

College Comment

Literary Indiscrimination

From out of the confused maelstrom of confusing times comes volume after volume of personal and general reactions to the greatest economic reversal that the human race ever has suffered. These books, magazines, newspaper articles go just as far toward the pessimistic extreme of thinking as did the vulgar "prosperity" literature which contributed little or nothing to real crestive advancement in its wishy-washy vein of optimism.

It is difficult, sometimes impossible, to establish a criterion upon which to judge the written expression which finds its way into periodicals today. It has been the case in this country for more than 30 years. We actually have not had a normal period of development since the turn of the century.

So we would bid not only college students, but the white collared executive and the man in the street as well, to take with a grain of salt most of the pessimistic outpourings which are flooding the presses today. Some say it is the thing to be well read, but they would let it go at that even now when the call is to read well and discriminately. The chances for improvement are 10 to 1 with the latter.—Syracuse Daily Orange.

At Boston University's annual pole rush, the sophomores were chagrined when they found they had forgotten the grease for the pole. They were even more chagrined when they found they had forgotten the pole on which to put the grease. Result—No pole rush.

The Wake Forest College library was wont to remove the comic sections from the newspapers on its racks, until recently student indignation forced the librarians to discontinue the practice.

An old suspicion was confirmed recently,—a survey at a western college proves that the student body is more intelligent than the faculty, that they stay at home more, and that they devote more time to their work.

Three Washington U. students were arrested when they tied a freshman to the rope of a flagpole and ran him to the top.

According to the Wisconsin Cardinal, a course in love-making has been added to the curriculum of Middlebury College in Vermont. Demonstrations will be given by the seniors. Many faculty members as well as first, second and third year students have enrolled in the course.

The hall was about three-quarters filled—very good for a first night—but this was a surprisingly smooth performance, and when the people taking part gather even more spirit, and actually live their parts for the few moments—necessary with amateurs—then this production will be another success to chalk up to the Choral Society.

Mr. Hazen then enumerated the various stages in the standardization of weights and measures in England. The standards are four in number; the pound and yard in the English system and the kilogram and meter in the Metric system both being legal. The present standards in England are in the custody of the Board of Trade and are more closely guarded than the Crown Jewels. The standards are measured wth the highest possible precision, under constant temperatures and isolated from any outside disturbances.

Redmen In Game With Irish Team

McGill Plays Columbus In Second Game Tonight At Forum

CANADIENS OPPOSE ROYALS IN OPENER

Contest Is Not McGill Home Game — Next On Twenty-Third

TWO high class hockey matches will be witnessed tonight at the Forum when three of the league leaders take the ice in an effort to improve their present positions. Royals and Canadiens meet in the opening game and the Redmen will play Doc. McMahon's Irishmen at 9.30.

The first game looks to be the feature but with Columbus rapidly rounding into something more than a tail end team McGill may be forced to extend themselves. The Redmen need the two points that they can get by defeating Columbus, in the worst way. Canadiens, now tied with McGill for the lead, have a chance to move ahead at the expense of Royals, but as they also are showing some of the class that they failed to show earlier in the season the Frenchmen will have no cinch. The Ogilvie team will have to gain some points very soon as they will be in a bad way should both McGill and Canadiens win.

Columbus Improved

Bobby Bell will have a full team ready for tonight's tilt and will take no chances on losing out to the Irish. Their feat of holding the speedy Canucks in check last week has boosted their stock considerably in Senior Group circles. In their first meeting with the Red team they were beaten in the dying moments when Jack McGill blazed in two goals within four minutes of the finish to overcome their one goal lead.

Scoring statistics reveal that Royals have at last awakened, as Neville, Delahey and McKenzie are right up at the top. Neville is in the lead with four goals and three assists, while Delahey has four goals and two assists. Jack McGill, with two goals and two assists, leads the Crimson marksmen. Neis and Gordie Crutchfield, Hugh Farquharson and Ken Farmer each have three points.

Vics are idle tonight as the schedule enters the second round. The teams meet each other three times during the season.

Referees for the game will be Paul Noble and Leo Heffernan.

MOB PROTESTS MICHIGAN POLL

Ann Arbor, Mich. — A hastily-organized mob of more than 60 students and a handful of townspeople stormed the offices of the Michigan Daily, Thursday night Dec. 8, and threatened to "stop the presses unless we get a full retraction!"

The group, primarily members of the Michigan Socialist Club, claimed irregularities in the conduct of the Daily's campus straw-vote on the presidency, charging that "Gilbreth (Frank B. Gilbreth, managing editor) is in the pay of Republicans." Hoover won the straw-vote with 1,851 votes against Roosevelt, who ran a poor second with 880.

Gilbreth explained to the crowd that another student had cast nine votes as a practical joke to prove he could elude the vigilance of election commission members, and then told Gilbreth of the act. The nine votes were cast out of the final count, the editor declared.

Covered False Ballots

However, leaders of the mob charged that the paper had covered up the false ballots and demanded "a complete retraction in the same space and with the same size headline as the original article." Gilbreth flatly refused to accede to their proposals.

Prominent Socialist leaders addressed the group from desk tops in the office, demanding that the presses be stopped and the article withdrawn. The editor, however, warned them that any attempt to enter the composing or press rooms of the Daily's plant would meet with disaster. He drew a line across the floor in the editorial office and ordered members of the crowd to stay on their side.

"You are welcome to remain and watch production of the regular issue," he told them, "but any attempt to cross that line or to interfere with our work will meet with violence."

After hurling threats and insults at the paper's staff, stragglers began to leave the mob, which had completely disintegrated shortly before midnight. No further attempts were made to halt production, and the Friday morning issue appeared with a two-column article on the incident and a scathing major editorial criticizing the attitude of a group which "raged for freedom of speech and the press and then talked about stopping the presses."

A movie theatre has been installed on R.M.S. Aorangi on its Australian run and passengers had the first entertainment in that line on a recent voyage. This is the first ship to reach Vancouver carrying sound movie equipment.

Intercollegiate Hoop Squad In Exhibition Tilt With Nationale

Game Will Be Played In M.H.S. Gym at 6.00 p.m.

BOTH TEAMS STRONG

BACK from their successful visit to Vermont, the Intercollegiates have resumed practice and have been hard at work all week. Tonight they will engage in a practice game with the powerful Nationale five. With but a few exceptions, last year's provincial and Ottawa Valley championship team composed of the same players who carried the banner of the Fusiliers so successfully. These exceptions include Bunny Talpis, stalwart of McGill teams for many years and Baysinger and Newton who are more famed perhaps for their rugby activities this past year, when they were members of the M.A.A.A. club. Reports state, however, that they are no less valuable basketeers.

Newton, undoubtedly, is the heaviest guard ever to play on a local floor and will be a hard man to pass. Baysinger is, as yet, an unknown quantity, and will be seen in action tonight. Schuler, who formerly played guard, may be employed in a new capacity, as Coach Gronau is intending to play Melville at one of the forward positions and Johnny Schuler at centre. Schuler is tall and valuable under the basket. He may be one of the team's biggest point-gainers this year.

Forwards Good

Alongside of Schuler and Melville will be Kyle who played a consistently good game at that position last year. Kyle can shoot with the best of them, and will no doubt prove a dangerous man to opposing teams. Talpis, Baysinger, Lamb, and Taylor will aid the forwards in getting the baskets.

Tonight's game is to be in the nature of a practice match to allow Coach Van Wagner's men to accustom themselves to various styles of play, others than those of teams belonging to their league. The value of this policy has been amply justified in the game against Vermont last Saturday, when the Redmen proved themselves capable of holding the tricky Vermonters by offering unexpected resistance to their effective and complicated criss-cross play — the play that is expected to gain them most of their victories this year.

Red Team Intact

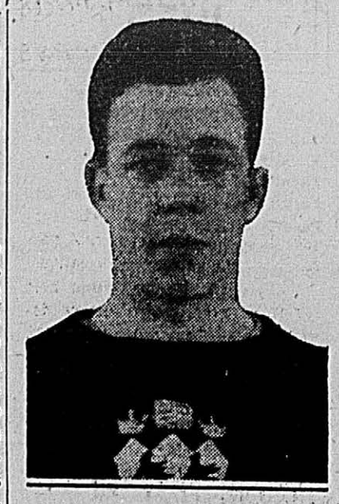
With the exception of Young, who will not be out before Christmas, the Redmen will be intact for tonight's match with the Nationale. Condit or Lewin will be used at centre, and Faulkner, Smaill and Wilson will take care of the forward positions. On the defence will be Calhoun and Rice, both of whom are capable of holding the Nationale snipers.

The game will be played at the Montreal High School gym at the regular McGill practice hour — 6.00 p. m., and large attendance of students is expected.

City League Basketball

Will the following please turn out for the Y.M.H.A. game tonight: Weber, Wilson, Shandro, McBroom, Ditkofsky, Finkelstein, Ross, Lee, Nugent, Halpenny and Aspler. Report at 7.45 p.m. sharp.

Centre Ice Star



HUGH FARQUHARSON, clever centre ice player of the senior hockey team, who will be seen in action against Columbus tonight.

City League Cagers Meet Y.M.H.A. Team

Play Tonight At 8.15 On Mt. Royal Gym Floor

LAST PRACTICE TILT

IN what will probably be the last exhibition match before their inaugural City League tilt after Christmas, the McGill seconds meet the Y.M.H.A. "A" squad at the latter's Mount Royal cage emporium at 8.15 tonight. Coach Van Wagner has a strong team on deck for the clash and all available strength will be sorely needed, as the "Y" hoopsters are a force to be contended with in any basket loop.

Tonight's match will see in action Weber, crack forward of the intercollegiate team of two seasons ago, who has returned to his old haunts to bolster the second squad. Wilson will also play tonight. He has played some sterling basketball this season and was a member of the aggregation which trimmed Vermont at Burlington on Saturday night.

Strong Opposition Featured

The others who will complete the personnel of the Redmen are Shandro, McBroom, Ditkofsky, Finkelstein, Ross, Lee, Nugent, Halpenny and Aspler. These have been attending practices fairly regularly and they are all set to trip up the Hebrew lads.

This year, the Red team is operating in a particularly tough circuit. Advance notices would indicate that the opposition to McGill will be composed of more experienced basketeers, N.D.G., Beavers, Top Notch, Sun Life, and Nationale are mooted as likely fellow league members of the seconds. Nationale are the outstanding aggregation of this array of hoop talent. Playing last year under M.A.A.A. colors, they swept all provincial opposition before them to annex the Quebec championship and were halted in their march to Dominion honors only after adding to their laurels the Ottawa Valley title.

Strenuous Season Assured

Beavers and Top Notch were new to last year's basket circles, but one season has made them formidable contestants. N.D.G. are a brand new aggregation altogether though the men which go to make up the club are well-known players. Mills, Allan, Woo, et al, are tried and true veterans of the game. Sun Life are also not unknown to City League fans and they already have in their this season's belts the McGill Intercollegiate's scalp. A strenuous season is assured Coach Van Wagner's hoopsters.

Member from St. Cuspidore des Trois Spitoons, who in his own words "inaugurated the Ottawa Exposition" by exposing the Government. From the outset Ford stressed the promises made by the Conservative Party in their campaign speeches which he claimed were not carried out. (Uproar in the House). Before the Government came into power Canada was blessed with good times; now we have depression. Before the Conservatives assumed office we had wine, women and song; now "we have beer and the missus." And the Administration has done nothing to alleviate this situation. (Cries of Hear Hear!)

The butter and egg situation in the west was concisely reviewed by the speaker. The Government has deceived the farmers who are receiving but ten cents a pound for their butter, although the cows are working overtime, and they will pay anyone who will take their eggs away before they rot.

Premier Parries

The Rt. Hon R. Wilson Beckett, the defeated Prime Minister, in opening his counter-attack, evinced astonishment at the amount of gas a "Ford" used. (Riot). He tackled the only point of the Opposition which he considered worthy of consideration—namely that Canada should go off the Gold Standard; but, he asked, where should she go? He claimed that the depression hit the country while the Opposition were in power, yet their Dunning Budget did nothing to relieve the situation. On the contrary the Conservative Government recently voted $20,000,000 for the relief of unemployment. (Discordant cries) The Premier went on to cite the progressive legislation passed by his Government such as in connection with the Railway situation, Radio Control, the St. Lawrence Waterway and the Ottawa Conference. (Continuous cheering ensued until the Speaker called for order).

Schaffhausen Speaks

The Shadow Minister of Fish and Chipperies denounced the administration with regard to its treatment of Communists and like individuals. He suggested as a possible remedy the inauguration of Fish and Chip shops.

Marjorie Gownans, representative of the Delta Sigma Minority in the Beckett Cabinet, dealt with the wheat situation and to some extent with Canada's Foreign Policy.

At this point in the proceedings the Farmers Party arrived from the West and their leader, Brenhouse, the Farmer-Economist of the Middle West, voiced in glowing terms the sentiments of the Farmers.

Goulding Expounds

The Opposition was further supported by a lengthy speech by the Hon. "Babs" Goulding who urged stricter control of the Railways as the on train she came down on the Cowcatcher gave off butter milk.

The Hon. J. A. Zaitlin next took up the cudgels in defence of the Becket Administration and compared the Leader of the Opposition to everything from a Jackass to "a small boy."

The Laborite views on the situation were expressed by the Honorable member from Strathcona Hall, Lloyd Reynolds, who presented a radical interpretation of the Twenty-Third Psalm. He categorized the Ottawa Conference as a Constitutional Quibble.

Walsh Attacks Waterways

The Hon. Allison Walsh, Minister of Tirade and Converse, pointed out the monstrosities of the St. Lawrence Waterway Project sponsored by the Government.

After a brief summing up by the leaders a division was taken and the House decided in favour of the Opposition. (Loud cheering and a Farmer's Yell).

INTERMEDIATE ICE SQUAD AND U. OF M. CLASH AT FORUM

Intercollegiate Intermediate Loop Gets Under Way Today at 1.30 p.m.

THIS afternoon at 1.30 the initial game of the Intermediate Intercollegiate League will be played, with McGill and U. of M. as the opponents. The league is comprised of U. of M., Loyola, Bishop's College and McGill. Today's match is the only one scheduled before the Christmas holidays and the next one will take place on January 11.

Bobby Bell has had large turnouts at every practice session of the intermediates and will trot out a strong sextette this afternoon. Twelve players will be dressed for the contest, two of whom will be goalers. Captain Ross Wilson will perform on the rear-guard along with Wilson and Owen. Cage duties have been assigned to Dave Tennant and Bill Grant. Tennant received a nasty cut over the eye yesterday in practice but will start if the injury allows.

Two Lines Selected

McDuff, Tait and Harry Griffiths are slated for regular front line duty. They have been working well together in practice and should give the U. of M. stalwarts a busy time. Calder, Johnson and Corbett have been selected for the second line and Wight will be used as relief for both lines. Coach Bell has a capable crew in the above named outfit and they should prove a real threat before the schodule has proceeded very far.

Little is known of the make-up of the French Students' team but they can be depended on to ice a strong squad in any event. The University of Montreal has plenty of hockey material in attendance and will be no less a threat for the title than McGill

This match is a McGill home game and will be played at the Forum. No admission will be charged. Walter Smaill will referee the contest.

Coach of Redmen

DR. BOBBY BELL, director of McGill's hockey squads, who will have a busy time today with both Intermediate and senior teams in action.

Meds 2 Basketeers Beat Engineering 3

Sawbones Overwhelm Plumbers to Win by Score of 50-16

YESTERDAY'S interclass basketball game went to Medicine 11 by a wide margin, the second year medicos defeating Engineering 111, 50-16. Engineering tried hard all through the game but were unable to cope with the superior type of play of their opponents who performed like veterans, passing and shooting with a great degree of accuracy.

The doctors held the lead continually throughout both halves and were at no time in danger of being beaten. In the first half they ran up 28 points against seven dropped in by the third year Plumbers. Shuster led the way with 14 points, all of which were scored as baskets. Monahan and Donahue, also of the Meds squad sank three baskets each during the opening half. Cross, Panos and French did most of the scoring for Engineering.

Doctors Score Freely

Medicine kept up the relentless attack in the second half and ran in 22 additional points while Engineering were only able to garner nine more. Monahan accounted for eight of the 23 Meds points with field goals and almost every Medico managed to get himself at least one basket. The team play which they displayed in the second half was a treat to watch. Engineering played well in this half but were no match for the brilliant Meds students.

Cross and Drake were the only Plumbers able to register baskets during the frame while Panos added a foul to make the final score 50-16 in favour of the Sawbones.

Medicine II—Monahan (14), White (4), Shuster (16), Donahue (8), Olker (2), Hahman, Ruben (4), Dolfini (2).

Engineering III—Panos (3), French (2), Cross (7), Drake (4), Swift, Pistreich.

Chefs AT Murray's are all "degree" men ..graduates of the Murray School of Fine Cooking

We do not hire Chefs on their reputations. These are only good insofar as they indicate a basic knowledge of their craft. Experienced or not, the man who hopes to become a Murray chef must enroll for a course of training in the Murray School. There, he is given a thorough grounding in the Murray ideals. He is taught how to prepare food the Murray way and how to cook it to the exacting standards demanded at all Murray restaurants. When he graduates . . . a master of all the Murray principles . . . he is permitted to serve Murray guests, and not before.

HIDDEN WEALTH

London, Ont. — In the Spring of 1927, a little schooner, sister ship of the Blue Nose, threaded its way through the Arctic wastes and into Baffin Bay. The little ship was ill-fated, and cracked-up on the bar. Very little was said about the privations and hardships these men went through during the exploitation of this region, and the long march to the rail head in the early Fall. It was just another of the every-day events in the life of the men who devote their time and energies to the exploration of the far North. Few people hear about these things, few care. Unless an Eldorado is discovered, it is of very little interest to the public. Thomas Hearn's memorable cross-country march to the mouth of the Copper Mine is all but forgotten. Tyrell's more recent and more thorough survey of this barren land country is also a memory.

Blue Clay Belt

A few years ago, samples of a blue clay belt which extended from Winnipeg to the western shore of James Bay were brought down and examined. Later a few diamonds were found in the supposedly barren and worthless territory. Soon after this the enterprising Colonel Mackie observed that as there were pot-holes on the western coast of James Bay and pot-holes on the Belcher Islands as well as large iron deposits, it might be worth while to stake these Islands.

It was thought that as the railway was nearing its completion at Moose Factory, the iron deposit might be used to advantage. Since then the iron has proved of too low a grade to be utilized. But there remain the pot-holes, pot-holes in blue clay of volcanic origin. Perhaps some day there will be a Kimberley in the North. It is a thought worth considering, the mother diamond field may lie under farm land, under muskeg, under snow or under ice.

If this field could be discovered sometime in the immediate future it might help us on our way to prosperity. Indeed, Canada's future lies in the North; it is the North that makes the wheels of commerce revolve; without it we would be a nonentity in the world of wealth and nowadays nations are judged by their commercial standing, and not by their standing army.

Pent-up Energy

One has but to glance at the north country to realize the pent-up energy that there exists. It is a new country, populated by a new people, always on the move, nothing is stale or stagnant, optimism is rife.

The confidence of the mass population of the cities to the south has been shaken, the bottom has fallen out of the stock market, and to many it looks as if it will never be replaced. This is detrimental to northern progress, both commercial and educational. People question the wisdom of investing their funds in projects that go toward northern development. They sneer at the efforts of modern explorers, they question the expense—is it worth while, is it useful, is it a means to an end? They do not seem to realize that if it were not for the explorers of all time, they would not be here they would not be accruing the benefits derived from our northern fields of wealth.

Exploration has always been handicapped by the lack of confidence and arm-chair views of the stay-at-homes. And these same are always too ready to flock like a bunch of buzzards to the kill after the wealth has been discovered, after the project has been put through, and after the deeds of self-sacrifice, heroism, gigantic thinking and campaigning have all been put through, finished and completed. Then after a short while, when it is a sure thing with a rock bottom, in they come, never taking a chance on having their fingers burnt. This is not the spirit of our pioneer ancestors. The public must place confidence in the north, must learn to understand the north, must be educated into appreciating the north, for to the north lies the way out of our present difficulties.

We are prone to believe the far north is nothing but a field of snow and ice, devoid of scenery and interest, but this is ignorance. Any who have seen the country will tell you more. True, it is possessed of a beauty that cannot be expressed in a pretty little sonnet by a Keats or a Shelley. The beauty is far too grand and rugged for this, and it takes a Service to truly describe it. It is possessed of a character that inspires an immediate confidence, and if the chance is given it will repay the confidence tenfold.

At present, owing to the economic situation, that vast land is more or less at a standstill, but in a few years it will be a humming hive of industry. Mile after mile of rail has been laid to complete the lines to Moose and Churchill, bridges and dams have been built, towns spring up over night and are gone on the morrow, for the job has been completed, one more rung in the ladder to the Arctic has been Climed.

Churchill is at a standstill, Moose is at a standstill. Why? Because the public will not spend, because the public will not invest, because the public has no confidence in Canada's north. How are we going to instill this confidence? The answer is simple, yet hard to achieve. Yearly more young men must go north, the era of "go west, young man, go west" is past. The north is calling and must be answered.

Surface But Scratched

The surface of the so-called vast northern void has been but scratched. There are hidden under rocks, ice, snow, water, lie many more Hollingers, many more Lake Shores, many more Klondikes. All that is necessary is a people with the requisite intestinal fortitude to start projects that at first look vague, and push them to a successful conclusion.

Discoveries, exploration, adventure, have not passed out of our lives, instead they challenge us more than ever before. Shall we accept the challenge and develop our North or fail to utilize our vast natural resources and fall by the wayside?

LOVERS RELIEVED

Madison, Wis. — A great sigh has gone up from the habitats of romance on the campus. It's the depression and not kissing that spreads Vincent's angina infection, more familiarly known as trench mouth.

Trench mouth is spreading rapidly —an increase of 100 per cent in nine years, Dr. Luckett, associate professor of hygiene in the University of Wisconsin, affirms. A recent survey, started by a New York doctor in love, has absolved the maids and damned the drinking glass.

The depression is the medium. Depression conditions cause economy. Economy removes paper cups in public drinking places and substitutes glass or tin cups. Voila! The little trench mouth germ clings to the cup and waits for the next victim.

Harmless Pastime

Knowing that kissing is no more dangerous than taking a drink of water, the amorous swain may now enjoy without fear the saccharine delights of a nuzzled embrace.

The juxtapositionary contacts of osculation have been unjustly criticized. Girls with damp, splattery kisses have been under suspicion of having trench mouth, when, as a matter of fact, they have been merely drooling with delight. This leaves the trench mouthers with no advantages at all. They used to have at least the compensation of thinking the means justified the end. Now they are looked upon, not as successful Don Juans, but merely as a little careless in their drinking habits.

The survey is likely to have only an academic interest to Badger students. The Big Six" about the tendency of germs to roam from the original reservation—and then there are others —"awfully sorry, but I'm not that type of girl," and then there are those from which the germs haven't a chance to spread, burning to a crisp before getting to first base.

Further study of the subject will be made, but in a more optimistic state of mind, now that it is known that the great national boudoir and flivver pastime is not under suspicion.

Socialist Premier Voted For Canada

Straw Vote Held In Vancouver Rejects Older Parties

Vancouver, B. C., (CIP). — Should J. S. Woodsworth, Socialist member of the House of Commons, be prime minister of Canada? Members of the Historical Society of the University of British Columbia apparently think so, for the Winnipeg legislator received a clear majority of the ballots cast in a straw vote between Canada's three party leaders taken at a recent meeting of the Society. Mr. Woodsworth polled 10 of the 19 votes cast, Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King received 7 and Premier R. B. Bennett obtained only 2.

The vote was conducted following a study of nationalism in Germany and a discussion of the growing support for Communistic and radical groups in that country. It was taken on a preferential basis, and in the voting for second choice, Mackenzie King led. He received 8 votes in this class, against 6 for Mr. Bennett and 4 for Mr. Woodsworth. Only in the matter of last choices did the prime minister receive a plurality, obtaining 11 of the 19 votes. One member of the group took no chances of losing his vote, "plumping" it for Woodsworth and not voting for second or third choices.

Status Of Spanish Club Fully Defined

Advisory Board

To give effect to headings (4) and (5) of the "purposes of the club" it is proposed to form on Honorary Advisory Board, to be presided over by the diplomatic representatives of Spain, Portugal and the Republics of Central and South America. The formation of such a Board, associated with our two principal institutions of learning, will be a sufficient guarantee of formality and seriousness in all the activities of the Club.

It is not possible at present to give any detailed information regarding the constitution of the Honorary Advisory Board. In the first place, the organisers of the Club have not as yet had time to interview all the Consuls, and then they desire before proceeding further, as a mere matter of courtesy, to await the arrival in Montreal of the new Consul-General of Spain for Canada. Everyone is aware of the great interest that the Government of Spain has in the part taken in our Spanish studies at McGill.

It is probable that the Spanish Consul General will be president of the Honorary Advisory Board. An alternative would be that the Consuls-General should fill this office in rotation.

Among the names on the Honorary Advisory Board will appear those of prominent Canadian citizens who have already given us their assistance.

The next lecture will be given in the same building and at the same hour, 8 p.m., on January 30th, 1933, by Mr. George Gonzalez, ex-consul of Columbia. His subject will be "Columbia and its customs," and will be illustrated by slides and views. Mr. Gonzalez hopes further to give his audience musical selections, on the piano and gramophone, representing songs and dances typical of the beautiful country which he has represented for so many years as Consul.

All conferences are delivered in the Spanish language, and are followed by interesting, though informal, speeches and discussions in Spanish.

Todos los de habla espanola que tengan interes en la formacion de este Club deberian comunicarse con el profesor R. M. Sugars, de la Universidad de McGill, o cen el sechetario del Club, quienes les suministraran los informes que necesiten.

As regards membership fees, that for University members has been fixed at $2 and that for members not immediately associated with the Universities at $3. Intending members should immediately send in their applications, enclosing cheque for membership fee, to Mr. L. F. W. Ogilvie, Secretary, The Spanish Club, McGill University.

Since the Club was started, two very successful meetings of its members have been held in the McGill Union, Sherbrooke Street. At the first of these meetings Mr. Denton, Engineer, in an interesting lecture, illustrated by slides, described his experiences in Northern Spain and the Pyrenees and in the second, Professor R. M. Sugars traced, with appropriate lantern illustrations, the early history of Madrid, its gradual growth and development, and the important part it has played in the political and intellectual life of Spain during the 17th, 18th and 19th centuries.
